plicated and hopeless bankruptcies. The central fact in the case of Austria is simply this: that the government expends annually more than it can collect by way of revenue. All governments that do this will ultimately arrive at a condition equivalent to that which Austria has reached. Each deficit, as it is humorously called: that is to say, each season when more is squandered than can be squeezed from the people, demands a financial expedient to make up the difference. Each successive expedient becomes more desperate than any of its predecessors. The industrial interests of the people are, one after another, sacrificed to compensate the money class for its services in preserving a delusive appearance of solvency. Things grow annually worse and worse, until a result arrives of which the condition of Austria is a fair average exemplication.

The disease of spending more than it can collect is not confined to the House of Hapsburg. Our Government spends more than it can collect. We are, in one respect, worse off than Austria; for while they have one, we have several governments, one within another, all of which spend more than they can collect. To the National Government expedients have become a current financial resource; to the State government they are equally so; in our case we have both county and city debts which are annually on the increase, demanding from time to time a resort to extraordinary financial devices to meet accruing obligations. These governments, in respect to the creation of debts, are no check upon each other; but on the contrary, there would seem to be a strife as to which should borrow the most money and expend it to the least purpose.

Congress meets to appropriate: Party strife is forgotten amid combinations to increase the expenditure; and this in the face of the fact that upon the basis of no known data can the accruing revenues be figured up equal to the demand which is thus created State, County and City Legislatures find bills of appropriation the most interesting subject that falls within their line of duty. Our expedients are not yet quite as desperate as those of Austria; but all that will come in time, and the tears which we shed over the misfortunes of that nation may very properly be reserved for ourselves.

The correlative of public debt is revolutionary repudiation; and to this, sooner or later, things must come. In Austria, its imminency is easily perceptible. This huge aggregate of obligation must be wiped out: it can not, by any possibility be paid. The act of repudiation may overthrow the Government, cast the posterity of Rudolph from the throne, sever the Empire into its original fragmente, and render necessary a new "set-tlement of Europe." Under our popular forms the matter will be more easily managed, and with less danger to existing i.stitutions. A party founded upon the idea that no one generation of men has the rightful power to bind another in respect to pecuniary obligations, and legislatures elected upon the issue thereby established, will do all the necessary work, and, at the same time, at the expense, perhaps, of some odium, give practical force to one of the most important principles of government.

The resolution for Mr. Hyatt's discharge was agreed to.

Mr. Hamlin presented a remonstrance from New York in regard to the Pilot Laws.

Mr. Green introduced a resolution for printing. 25,000 extra copies of the reports on the Harper's Ferry invasion, which was referred to the Committee on Printing.

Mr. Bayard moved to take up the bill to give the Sergeant-at-arms of the Senate and House power to appoint deputies in the different States.

Mr. Hale opposed it.

Mr. Bayard called for the yeas and nays on the motion to take it up. Disagreed togovernment.

SABBATARIANISM is likely to become an important question in the Presidential canvass The discussion of the Sunday laws is going on vigorously in the New York papers, the Republican press generally advocating the laws, although the Tribune complains bitterly of the efforts which are made to "Draw all loose and reckless pleasure seekers of our city into an attitude of hostility to the Republican party."

The German and Democratic papers, except the Journal of Commerce, and most of the independent papers, denounce the laws. The Times advocates the Sunday laws ponderously. The Tribune upholds the laws, but complains that the Republican party should be held responsible for them. It is rather queer that a party paper should advocate moral laws and then complain because they turn "loose and reckless pleasure-seekers" against the party. One might reasonably conclude that the Tribune does not want moral laws at the cost of losing the immoral Republicans.

AT Philadelphia the Japanese Princes were robbed of their swords, which they had left in their spartments while they were viewing the sights from the balcony at the Continental Hotel. As it is a point of honor with them never to be deprived of these sacred weapons, and as the only way that Japanese of high rank have of vindicating their honor is by cutting open their abdomens, we may expect that, unless the swords are restored, we shall soon hear that these Nokamis have disemboweled themselves on American soil.

THE Republican State Convention adopted a resolution demanding the repeal of the Fugitive-slave Law. The quasi Republican papers of this city do not seem disposed to favor their readers with this information. The radicals did this to snub Corwin, who told the House last winter that the Fugitiveslave Law was defective, and the Repulicans of Ohio wanted to repeal it in order to give the South a better one, by which they would be able to recapture their negroes.

JOAQUIN GOMES died recently, at Havana, possessed of great wealth, acquired chiefly, in the slave-trade. He bequeathed $303,000 to various churches and raligious, benevolent and public institutions, and for various char-itable purposes, all of which was paid by his executors out of the ready money of his estate. Thus Providence makes even the wrath of man to praise Him.

The Times makes the following startling amouncement among its religious items:
Recreation is a part of the worship of God. This accounts for the seal of our young people in following recreation. Perhaps they were not aware of their own motives until the Times informed them that it was to worship The Tornado Interpreted.

remarkable instance of the working of Providence in the recent tornado, is related in the official report of the business men's prayer meeting, showing, as the relator said,

He said :

The impression of the relator seems to have been that the man was restored from backsliding by a gracious influence from above, just before the tornado, and then was taken away by it to prevent his backsliding

This is like the good Catholic who was im plored to help a Jew who had fallen through the ice. The Catholic seized him by the hand, but refused to help him out unless he recanted Judaism and embrace Christianity. The Jew yielded to this powerful means of conversion, and announced his belief in the true faith, whereupon the Catholic told him that if he should help him out he might backslide, while now he could die a Christian; so he shoved him under.

Another person related the following incident, showing that the storm which was so full of terror was big with mercies:

"A person said that it was an 'ill wind that blew no body good.' He spoke of the recent tornado, and said that the storm had been the instrument of deeply convicting a man who was injured by it. The man was not only suffering from his injuries, but was also much pained by a review of his wicked life."

Celestial Food. It is said that since January, 1859, fifteen hundred Chinese laborers have been carried off by tigers, in Johore, the end of the Malucca peninsula. The tigers feed regularly on Celestial flesh, and it is said that good digestion waits on appetite. WE ARE indebted to Hon. Jno. A. Gurley for a copy of his speech on the bill to establish a printing department, which Mr. Gurley has pushed through the House very zealously and successfully. LATEST BY TELEGRAPH

NIGHT DISPATCHES. XXXVIII CONGRESS-FIRST SESSION

WASHINGTON, June 15.
SENATE—Mr. Mason, from the Special Committee on the Harper's Ferry matter, made a report at length, but itembodies nothing new.

Mr. Doolittle made a minority report, but it was not read.

The Committee was discharged from any further consideration of the subject.

Mr. Mason, from the same Committee, asked to be discharged from the consideration of the bills relating to the invasion, and states the memorials for the release of Mr. Hyatt—the memorials for the release of Mr. Hyatt—agreed to.

He also made a speech on the petitions from the negroes of Massachusetts, praying for the release of Mr. Hyatt, and asked that, as they tampered with the Senate, they be returned to the memorialists. Laid over.

Mr. Doolittle made a minority report, saying that the right of petition could not be denied any one.

Mr. Mason, from the same Committee, made a report discharging Mr. Hyatt.

The resolution for Mr. Hyatt's discharge was agreed to.

the motion to take it up. Disagreed to-yeas 22, nays 25.

Mr. Fitch moved to take up the House

Mr. Fitch moved to take up the House joint resolution, relative to the public printing, and make it the special order for to-morrow, at 11½ o'clock. Agreed to.

The Army Bill was received from the House, with sundry amendments.

The Light-house Appropriation Bill was taken up and passed.

The Tariff Bill was taken up.

The Light-house Appropriation Bill was taken up and passed.

The Tariff Bill was taken up.

Mr. Hunter argued that no change of the tariff was necessary. The present tariff would afford sufficient revenue for an economical support of the Government, and for the extinguishment of the public debt. The revenue under the present tariff would go on increasing. There would be from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 surplus next July.

He further contended that the iron interest was depressed by the fluctuations in the credit of the country and the revulsion of 1857. The tariff of 1857 furnished sufficient protection to Iows. He believed it enabled the public to weather as well as it did the financial crisis of that year, but if a change in the tariff was necessary, this bill was not a proper one to pass. The excessive charges contained in it would deter importations and reduce the revenue. Besides, it was so complicated in its machinery it would require an army of officials to execute it, and it would open the door to fraud more than any system ever devised. For these reasons he desired its postponement till next December.

Mr. Cameron also spoke in favor of an increase of the tariff.

After recess a vote showed no quorum present, but one was obtained after awhile.

After recess a vote showed no quorum present, but one was obtained after awhile, when the bill, by a vote of 20 to 23, was post-poned till the next session.

The Army Bill was taken up, and some of the House amendments concurred in, and a Committee of Conference appointed on the disagreeing votes.

Committee of Conference appointed on the disagreeing votes.

Mr. Pearce reported from the Committee on Conference on the disagreeing amendments to the Overland Telegraph Bill, and the Senate receded from its amendments, which put in the corporators, and agreed to the House amendments, which allows the Postmaster-General to advertise for proposals to build the line. The bill has now named both Houses, passed both Houses,

Mr. Slidell offered a resolution for the appointment of a select committee of three, to report a system to increase the revenue on the basis of the present House bill, just post-poned, and report at the next session. Laid poned, and report at the next session. Laid over.

Several private local bills were present when the Senate found itself without a quorum, and adjourned at 10 P. M.

HOUSE—Mr. John Cochrane, from the Committee on Commerce, reported a bill to change the name of the ship Rockhall to Massachusetts. He said the State of Massachusetts has purchased the vessel for the nautical branch of the Reform School.

Also the Senate bill changing the location of the Custom-house from Point Isabel to Brownsville. Both passed.

Mr. Delano presented a series of resolutions of the Massachusetts Legislature, instructing the Senators and requesting the Representatives from that State to use their efforts to secure the enactment of more stringent quarantine laws to prevent the importation of diseased cattle. Laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

A bill was passed authorizing the reissue of land-warrants in cases where the originals have been lost or destroyed, the Secretary of the Interior to frame such rules as will guard against fraud.

The House acceded to the request of the Senats for another Committee of Conference on the Homestead Bill.

The Pacific Telegraph Bill was taken up.
Mr. Colfax moved to concur in the Senate's amendment, restoring the names of Zevas Baroum and others, and authorizing a contract to be made with them.
Mr. Burnett opposed the bill.
Mr. Scott said that Mr. Burnett's hestility was unparalleled and unprecedented, the latter having operated his galvanic battery against it ever since it was introduced.
Mr. Burnett wanted to throw the establishment of a line open to competition.

lishment of a line open to competition.

Mr. Colfax — In that event you would merely get straw bidders. He briefly showed that there was no monopoly.

Mr. Burnett moved to table the bill. Negatived—70 to 120.

The House results to concur in the Sen-ate's amendment—83 to 104.

The House receded from an amendment to the Senate Bill, providing for the return of the recaptured Africans; and concurred in the Senate's amendment to the Light-house Bill.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the Senate's amendment to the Civil Appropriation Bill.
Hecess from 4½ till 7 o'clock.

The House reassembled at seven o'clock, and resumed the consideration of the appropriation of $500,000 for the Washington aqueduct, which was not concurred in; as was also that of $250,000 for a new jail.

Mr. Irvine, of New York, from the special committee to investigate store contracts in the city of New York, reported from the majority of the committee, approving of the change made by the Secretary of the Treasury. ury.

Mr. Barr presented a minority report, re-flecting in some degree on the conduct of the Secretary, imputing a want of good faith to contractors, and recommending the rescinding of contracts.

On motion of Mr. Irvine, the matter was postponed till the next session.

From Washington.

Washington.
Washington, June 15.—The report made by the Senate this morning, by Mr. Mason, Chairman of the Harper's Ferry Committee, comprises one hundred and lifty foolscap pages, exclusive of voluminous testimony. A full history is given of Brown's movements and results, and reference is made to the utter insecurity of the pesce and safety of some of the States, owing to the excited condition of the public mind.

The rifled carbines, manufactured in Connecticut, to be used in the strife in Kansas, and sent thither for that purpose, were voluntarily placed by the Massachusetts Kansas Committee, through its Chairman, in the hands of Brown, with vague and unexplained instructions as to their use, but the truth is, it would appear, he finally conceived the purpose of exciting civil war in some of the slaveholding States.

This expedition, so atrocious in character, would have been expected by Mr. Mason, in the armset of the slaveholding states.

slaveholding States.

This expedition, so atrocious in character, would have been arrested had even ordinary care been taken on the part of the Massachusetts Committee to ascertain whether Brown was truthful in his professions. The Committee are not prepared to suggest any legislation which in their opinion would be adequate to prevent like occurrences in future. If the several States, whether from motives of policy or a desire to preserve the peace of the Union, if not from a fraternal feeling, do not hold it incumbent on them after the experience of the country to guard in future by appropriate legislation against similar occurrences, the Committee can find no guarantee elsewhere for the security of peace between the States of the Union.

So far, however, as the safety of the public the States of the Union.

So far, however, as the safety of the public property is involved, the Committee would earnestly recommend that provision should be made by the Executive, or, if necessary, by law, to keep under adequate military guard the public armories and arsenals of the United States, in some way after the manner now practiced at the navy-yards and forts.

The report is signed by Messrs. Mason, Davis and Fitch.

Messrs. Collamer and Doolitile, the minority, in the course of their brief report, say Messrs. Collamer and Doolitie, the minority, in the course of their brief report, say that there is no evidence that any other citizens than those with Brown were accessory to this outbreak, nor any proof that any others had any knowledge of the conspiracy or its purposes, in the year 1859, nor does any evidence show that there was a conspiracy to rescue Brown or his associates from prison in Virginia. Time and reflection have happily dissipated much of the alarm and suspicion, and have shown that this raid was but an offshoot of the existing outrage and law-lessness in Kansas. They say there is no fact calling for Congressional legislation.

PROF. L. W. MASON — DEAR SER:
The underrigned believe that so much interest has been awakened by the Floral Concert, with the accompanying Mythological representations with which you favored the public on Friday evening last, that we believe we are but expressing an earnest and very general desire in soliciting at your hands a repetition of the entortainment. We trust, therafore, that, at a period as early as pessible, you will favor the public with its reproduction.

HON, R. M. BISHOP, HOW B. STORES, BUPUS KING AND OTHERS—GENTLEMEN: Your favor, containing a request for the reproduction of the Floral General of Last Friday evening is received. That a desire so flattering as that of which you speak should exist is very gratifying to me. I am more than pleased if any efforts that I have made to encourage the young of the city to musical emulation and improvement have secured the kind regards of my friends or the friends of the friends of the friends of the reproduction of the entertainment, I shall be much happy to accede to your request, and I shall accompany if with new features of interest and attraction. It will, however, be emineally proper that it should occur at or, as nearly as possible to the closing of the public echools, to take place in a few days.

I am, gentlemen, with high regards, 1e13

Very truly yours.

L. W. MASON.
